Instructor Feedback

Ally provides detailed feedback and support to help correct accessibility issues with your course content.

- Learn about accessibility issues
- Why they matter
- And how to fix them

Find the Ally Indicators

Ally indicators are color dials located next to course files. These dials indicate the file's level of accessibility and can help you prioritize which files to fix first. Students cannot see these indicators.

Hovering over the indicators lets you see the accessibility score: low, medium, or high.
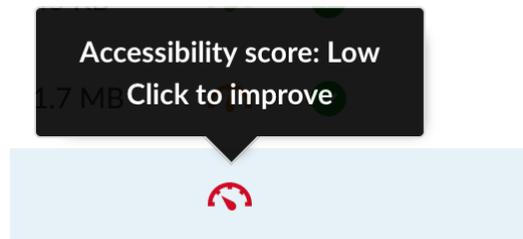

Click on the indicator to see the percentage score, specific issues affecting the file, and instructions for improving the file.

Once you have corrected the specific issues affecting the file, the accessibility percentage score will change.
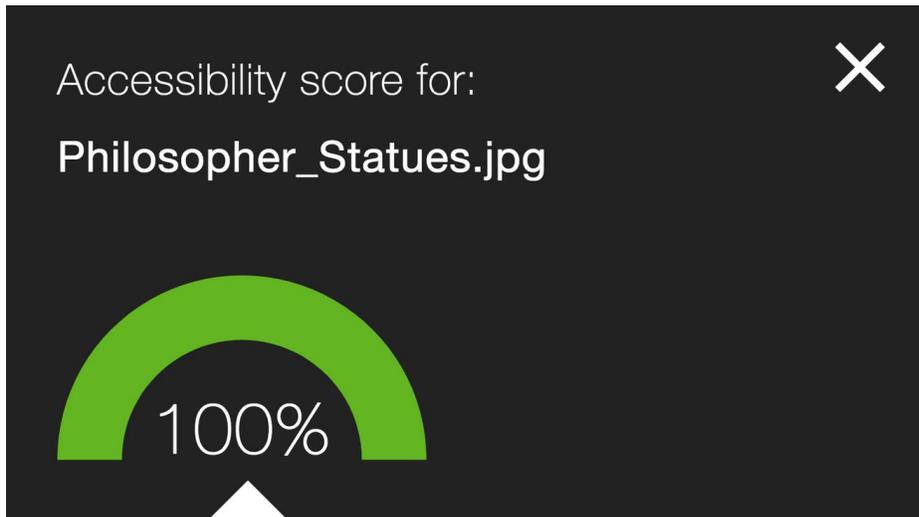

Seeing 100% means the file has no more issues to fix. Your students will have a more accessible version to download Ally alternative formats.
