

Learning Year Design Working Group

Charge

The Learning Year Design Working Group is charged with reimagining UTA's academic calendar and course scheduling practices to better serve students, faculty, and the university community. With a focus on maximizing learning opportunities throughout the full calendar year, the committee will explore innovative ways to increase access, support timely degree completion, and make more effective use of classroom space and instructional resources. This work will align with UTA's broader goals of flexibility, student-centered planning, and strategic resource stewardship—ensuring our academic calendar and course schedules are as dynamic and forward-thinking as our students.
