SSW Professor Hosts Community Dialogue on Urban Leadership

By Jaelon Jackson

The path to lasting community change doesn't start with a policy. It starts with the people.

That's the belief driving the work of Antong Lucky, president and CEO of Urban Specialists, a Dallas-based nonprofit focused on disrupting cycles of poverty and violence in urban communities. In a recent conversation with Dr. Kelli Rogers, assistant professor of practice at the University of Texas at Arlington School of Social Work, Lucky emphasized the power of lived experience, collaboration and empathy in driving social impact.

"A lot of organizations parachute in with answers. We begin by asking questions and listening," Lucky said. "The community is the solution. We just help catalyze it."

SSW Hosts Puppy Yoga to Promote Wellness and Self-Care

By Jaelon Jackson

In recognition of Mental Health Awareness Month and the conclusion of the spring semester, the University of Texas at Arlington's School of Social Work hosted a Puppy Yoga event on May 5. The event provided students, faculty and staff an opportunity to participate in guided yoga alongside puppies available for adoption.

Organized in partnership with Cowtown Friends of Fort Worth Animal Care & Control, the event aimed to promote wellness, encourage community involvement, and raise awareness about the needs of shelter animals and the importance of self-care.

MSW Student, Melody Mesmer

SSW graduate student receives Ima Hogg 2025 Scholarship

By Jaelon Jackson

A Master of Social Work student at the University of Texas at Arlington has been awarded the 2025 Ima Hogg Scholarship, a competitive honor recognizing top graduate students committed to expanding mental health services in Texas.

The Ima Hogg Scholarship, established in 1956 by philanthropist Ima Hogg, addresses the critical shortage of mental health professionals across the state. Each year, the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health awards one scholarship to a student nominated by each accredited Texas graduate school of social work. Recipients are selected based on academic achievement and a demonstrated commitment to serving communities after graduation.

Melody Mesmer, a firefighter paramedic with nearly three decades of service in the fire and EMS industry, brings extensive frontline experience to the social work field. In 2016, she founded a nonprofit organization to support first responders and their families through peer support training and mental wellness services. Her organization has delivered more than 12,500 hours of mental health care to over 3,500 first responders across Colorado and Texas.
