Fear and Survival: Uniting our Social Work Community in the Face of the Federal Immigration Crack Down

Thursday, January 15, 2026 | 6:00 pm - 8:00pm ET

Kick off the year with NASW and a critical conversation for our social work profession. Join us for a discussion with expert social workers on challenges and risks faced by clients and communities in immigrant communities. What is happening in communities after traumatic immigration raids? This NASW Student Series is in partnership with the NASW-MA annual virtual MLK Jr. Forum on Racial Justice will identify how social workers can work together to provide a system of care to support immigrant communities in the face of federal immigration crackdown. Expert social workers will discuss approaches to addressing the impact of immigration policy in communities, interventions to support immigrant communities, and strategies to integrate advocacy into clinical work.

Participants will be able to:

- Identify systems of care within immigrant communities.
- Learn specific interventions to address the impacts of immigration policy in social work practice across the range of settings where social workers live and work.
- Learn strategies to engage in advocacy centering communities most impacted by immigration enforcement.

This event is FREE and has 2 CEs available. Registration closes January 13.
